Section 3
Programs/Services Provided

Program Name	Description of Services to be provided
Habitat for Humanity	Habitat for Humanity will construct and/or remodel 16 homes for qualified low-income families (35% to 80% of area median income) Webb County, Texas. Habitat will train 10 AmeriCorps member and/or volunteers to become construction leadership for volunteer builders and homeowners. Building in partnership with selected families who are required to provide 500 hours of "sweat equity" in the building of their homes, HFH volunteers will provide labor with the supervision of Construction crew leaders. Habitat volunteers will also provide mentoring services in areas of budget, credit, education, and other life skills necessary for the new homeowners to become successful in providing for their families. Annual goals for the organization include empowering volunteers with skills that are both marketable that will help them make improvements on their own homes. Revitalization of neighborhoods is expected to increase during this fiscal year. The Veterans Program will continue to provide critical home repairs for a minimum of five (5) homes for qualified veterans. Disaster and critical home repairs will continue providing a needed service in the community that is not necessarily available from other agencies.
A Brush with Kindness	This program is designed to help revitalize neighborhoods and includes disaster rebuilding services in Webb County, Texas. Understanding that there are limited resources within a low income family, volunteers will identify and assist by doing minor repairs on the outside of homes, paint, provide ramps as necessary and assist with general landscaping improvements. Part of the program is designed to improve the aesthetics of targeted properties with the expectation that neighbors will also want to improve their homes. This program provides an opportunity for younger volunteers to become involved in helping others. Rebuilding and repairing homes that have been damaged by storms and floods is a part of this program. Volunteers who have been trained in the construction field will lead this program.
Aging in Place/Veterans	Aging in Place is an innovative program that allows individuals who have specific health challenges remain in their homes rather than live in nursing facilities. Trained construction volunteers assist in providing ramps, widening of doors and other obstructions to allow individuals and their caregivers the flexibility needed to be as mobile as possible. This program will also include funding to assist five (5) qualified veterans with needed home repairs.
Construction Trades Training	Habitat for Humanity teaches basic construction techniques, proper use of tools and safety training (OSHA) to all homeowners and volunteers who participate in the building & repair of homes for low income families. Empowering volunteers also provides them with marketable construction skills and volunteers learn how to improve and maintain their own homes.

Family Support Services

Success of new Habitat homeowners oftentimes depends on their ability to understand the importance of managing their credit by budgeting and setting financial goals. Mentorship and educational opportunities are offered to all members of their family from the time that they are approved for Habitat homeownership until they are no longer necessary. Current homeowners often provide mentorship for the new homeowners. This critical part of the Habitat for Humanity program has been extremely successful. There have been no forced foreclosures in 26 years. Many adults return to school learning to speak, read and write in English, obtain their high school AND graduate from college. Several Habitat homeowners have obtained their masters degrees.

Faith Based Housing Coalition

Habitat Laredo is a faith based organization and works with all denominations to provide service and volunteer opportunities. Habitat also partners with those organizations to provide building materials, furniture and expertise in building projects that are led by churches and mission groups. Faith based partners also provide housing and food for out of town collegiate and mission groups who come to assist with building projects in Webb County, Texas.
